U.S. is resupplying the Israeli military

WASHINGTON (AP) — In view of the "massive" Soviet airlift of military equipment to the Arab states, the United States began during the weekend to resupply Israel with military hardware, the State Department announced Monday.

"We have begun some resupply of Israel to an appreciable extent, designed also to prevent the massive Soviet airlift from unsettling the military balance in the area," press officer Robert J. McCloskey told a news conference.

The Soviet airlift, McCloskey explained, "is continuing at an increased pace."

The spokesman said the U.S. was still seeking a diplomatic solution to the conflict. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, McCloskey said, maintained contact throughout the weekend with "a number of governments involved in the fighting or interested in the outcome," including Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the Soviet envoy in Washington.

McCloskey said the Soviets, have delivered roughly 4,000 tons of equipment in 280 flights to the Egyptians and Syrians since last Wednesday.

He said he would not describe the contents of the Soviet deliveries, "though we know to some extent but not fully."

At the same time McCloskey firmly declined to say what the U.S. resupply contents are.

"I am not in the position to itemize the material involved," he said.

Reminded that Kissinger at his press conference last Friday described the Soviet airlift as being "fairly substantial," while McCloskey labeled it as "massive," the spokesman said the administration "reached the judgment on the characterization of the airlift in the last 48 hours."

Yet McCloskey insisted that the United States is, as he put it, "less interested in namecalling," meaning obviously to put the blame on the Soviet Union for the arms race spiral in the Middle East, but more interested in "trying to reach a diplomatic solution."

McCloskey emphatically repeated the U.S. denial that American military personnel would be involved in the fighting. "We do not have American military forces or personnel engaged in the fighting," he said.

Former vice president's farewell speech tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew addresses a television audience tonight and sources indicated the farewell speech may be an instruction on avoiding the problems that ruined his political career.

The approximately 15-minute speech is to be televised live at 7:30 p.m. EDT by NBC and CBS.

Agnew resigned Wednesday and pleaded no contest to a federal charge of income tax evasion.

He spent much of the weekend working on the speech, without the help of his speechwriters.

The former vice president showed up at his office in the Executive Office Building next door to the White House today around 9 a.m. EDT. Aides said he apparently was continuing to work on his television address.

Sources close to the former vice president said the speech would be "largely his own work."

"There won't be any whining and complaining and I don't expect him to be terribly defensive about it," said one associate. "But I think he will state his case firmly."

After leaving the U.S. courthouse in Baltimore Wednesday where he was given a $10,000 fine and three years' probation on the tax charge, Agnew promised he would make the speech.

He denied a series of criminal allegations the Justice Department listed against him in a unique 40-page document.

The government has agreed not to prosecute on the additional charges, but indications are that Agnew will elaborate on his denial.

"Lessons learned and some recommended improvements" might be included in the speech, touching on a description, from Agnew's view, of the hazards of a system that encourages corrupt activities by politicians, a source said.

"In his position, these are some of the things that he feels he still can contribute," one former aide said.

Meanwhile, Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss said about Agnew in a Los Angeles interview:

"I refuse to buy this posture they are trying to put him in as this brave, heroic, self-sacrificing man who resigned in the nation's interest."

Receive funds for purchase of textbooks

Ten area school districts have been allotted $93,853.92 in state funds to be used for the purchase of textbooks for the 1973-74 school year. County Treasurer Virgil Houchens said Monday.

Besides the seven school districts in Pettis County, three school districts not in the county also will receive a small share of the funds allotted to Pettis County.

The state collects the money from a tax levied on insurance companies operating in Missouri, Houchens said.

School districts are allotted the money on the basis of the number of county residents attending the schools.

The breakdown is as follows: Sedalia No. 200, $68,172.17; Hughesville R-5, $5,341.28; Sweet Springs R-1, $643.13; LaMonte R-4, $4,894.36; Smithton R-6, $6,562.14; Green Ridge R-8, $4,861.65; Dresden R-12, $861.15; Knob Noster No. 86, $87.20; Cole Camp R-1B, $1,493.39; Windsor R-1H, $937.45.

Richard Kimble, assistant superintendent for Sedalia School District No. 200, said the funds to be received by Sedalia schools also will be used to provide textbooks for students attending Sacred Heart, St. Paul's and Faith Christian schools.

Houchens said checks to each school district should be mailed out by Wednesday.

BULLETIN

The Sedalia School Board Monday accepted a proposal by junior high school architect Don Buller in which they agreed to withhold $39,125 until such time as the Don "L" Construction Co., Kansas City, corrects several faults that have delayed completion of the building for more than a year.

Among the projects to be redone are the wavy surface of the football field, stained ceiling tile, roof leaks, discoloration of the gym finish and the resurfacing of the stone facade on the outside of the building.

The proposal resulted from a meeting held Oct. 12 between Buller and representatives of the construction company.

Israeli position stormed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian commandos sneaked behind Israeli lines in the Sinai today and stormed an Israeli position in hand-to-hand fighting as Egyptian tanks consolidated new lines in the desert battleground, Cairo claimed.

Israel said the Egyptian armor again tried to push forward along the Sinai front but was halted where it stood following a seven-hour armored battle Sunday. Tel Aviv did not report the commando raid.

"Troops were landed in darkness behind enemy lines, stormed a position from more than one direction, clashed in savage hand-to-hand combat and inflicted heavy losses in lives and equipment," the Egyptians said in a communique. "Our units returned to safety except for some losses in men."

The communique did not pinpoint where the raid supposedly took place.

The Israelis said Sunday's Egyptian tank offensive was repelled and that Cairo's forces lost more than 200 tanks and 15 planes. The Egyptian version of the same battle said the Israelis pulled back an unspecified distance into the peninsula and lost 150 tanks and 29 warplanes.

"The pattern of today's fighting has become localized clashes in various sectors," the Egyptian statement said.

On the Syrian front, Damascus reported heavy tank, infantry and artillery battles raged as the fourth Arab-Israeli war ground into its 10th day.

Syrian shelling was slowing the Israeli advance toward Damascus and the Israeli tanks were reported about 21 miles from the ancient Syrian capital. Correspondents with the Israeli forces reported that long-range Syrian guns opened up whenever the armored columns tried to advance.

The Israeli military command also reported another naval exploit. It said its naval patrol boats sank 14 "armed fishing type" boats in harbor of Ras Gharib, on the Gulf of Suez during the night. Israel said the harbor, 20 miles across the gulf from Israeli forces on the Sinai peninsula, was an Egyptian commando base.

Otherwise, the Israeli command said, it was a quiet night on both the Syrian and Egyptian fronts.

The Egyptian military command said the fighting Sunday along the 102-mile Sinai front "raged with utmost violence and savagery." Egypt said its forces made territorial gains all along the line.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli command claimed Egyptian armored units failed to penetrate the Israeli defense line which it said was still about 2½ miles inland from the Suez Canal.

Associated Press correspondent Paul Kohn reported from the front that he saw no evidence that the Israelis gave up ground.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said in a televised speech Sunday night that the "serious, decisive battle" with Egypt was yet to come.

"This is not like previous wars. It is a war of many days and much blood," he said. "The important question is not a cease-fire. It is how much equipment the enemy will have left when we have finished the war. What we would like is for the Arabs to hurt so badly that they cannot think of war."

The Israeli command announced Sunday that Israel had lost 656 soldiers in the first eight days of fighting; the state radio gave an unofficial figure of 2,000 wounded. Neither Syria nor Egypt has given casualty figures.

Egypt reported intense air battles over the northern Nile delta Sunday and claimed 15 Israeli planes had been shot down. Israel announced that its planes had bombed three air bases 50 to 100 miles north of Cairo.

Dwarfed by the huge portraits on the billboard, Charles Amos, Route 2, takes a break after putting up a new face on one of four billboards Monday at city parking lot Number 8, Main and Lamine. Amos, an employee of Weatherby Outdoor Advertising, Jefferson City, said that it takes about 30 minutes to reface a billboard. Two of the billboards are completed and he hopes to finish the other two later this week.

Peace restoration move in Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The former military premier of Thailand, his son and the deputy premier left Thailand today in a move to restore peace to the violence-torn capital, the government radio said.

The three Army leaders—former Premier Phnom Kittikachorn, Deputy Premier Phaphas Charusathien and Col. Narong Kittikachorn—were the focus of street clashes between foes of the country's government and the regime's troops and police for the past two days.

Phaphas was considered the most powerful man in the ruling group. Narong, Thanom's son, is the deputy chief of national security.

Thousands of flag-waving demonstrators had demanded the execution of the three leaders.

Thailand's new civilian premier appealed again today for an end to bloodshed as student bands attacked police stations, looted and burned government buildings.

Student representatives, who reportedly met with new Premier Sanya Thammasak, relayed his appeal for order to demonstrators in the square around Democracy Monument, the center of the week-long antigovernment demonstrations which erupted into violence Sunday in this capital city.

Sanya did not immediately confirm the departure of the three military leaders and the demonstrators were skeptical.

Radio Thailand, the government radio, said Sanya reported that the new government had reached an understanding with the students, but it did not elaborate.

The new premier warned that those who looted and burned government installations would be suppressed by nightfall.

Truck convoys moved into the city today, carrying troop reinforcements in full battle gear.

King Bhumibol Adulyadej named Sanya, rector of Thammasat University, to replace Thanom Sunday. But throngs of demonstrators confronted the army's troops and tanks today, and sporadic shooting sent a steady stream of casualties to already crowded hospitals.

Greatest flooding threat at Boonville

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Missouri River remained above flood stage from Rulo, Neb., to Jefferson City, Mo., this morning, but the greatest threat of flood damage centered in central Missouri.

National Guardsmen and volunteers worked through the night on a levee near Boonville, Mo., protecting thousands of acres of farmland and several homes north of the town. But authorities say no towns are threatened at this time.

Late Sunday night, the sheriff's office in Fayette, Mo., said water had begun flowing over the levee and sandbagging operations were beginning.

Committees probing background of Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate committees have started background investigations on vice presidential nominee Gerald R. Ford as a prelude to confirmations hearings.

Majorities in both house have said they plan to vote for the 60-year-old Michigan congressman, unless something unexpected turns up in his background.

Ford, already given a vice presidential office, jet plane and entree to intelligence briefings and Cabinet meetings by President Nixon, said he doesn't know of anything that could cause problems.

Meanwhile, Ford has confirmed that he did not include contributions of $11,500 in his signed declaration to the House clerk after the 1970 elections, saying it was because he had endorsed the contributions over to the Republican National Congressional Committee for other Republican campaigns.

The chairmen of the House Judiciary and Senate Rules Committees said Saturday, as Ford's nomination was submitted to Congress, they planned full probes on the House GOP leader.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said "we intend to see to it that the implementation of the 25th Amendment is in full compliance in word and history with the legislative history that created it."

He said committee investigators would review Ford's background and financial situation. He said he hoped hearings can start within two weeks. Television coverage will be permitted, Rodino said.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., held a preliminary meeting of the Senate Rules Committee, at which it approved his proposal for a full FBI investigation of Ford.

Cannon has said it would be at least two weeks before public hearings could start, but committee sources said the schedule would be reviewed at a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The committee approved Cannon's proposal to open the hearings to television coverage.

An Associated Press poll showed that at least 57 senators and 225 House members planned to vote for the nomination, barring derogatory disclosures. In the Senate 51 votes are needed for a majority while in the House 218 votes would be needed.

A spokesman for Douglas said the justice would have no further comment on his wiretap remarks.

The application for bail pending appeal to the Supreme Court was filed by Margaret Anne Heutsche, who was found in contempt of court for failure to answer questions before a federal grand jury in Chicago that was probing break-ins into draft boards in Evanston, Ill.

The application went to Justice William H. Rehnquist, who referred the matter to the full court. The court rejected the bail application over Douglas' dissent.

The defendant claimed that the subpoena and the questions asked her before the grand jury were the product of illegal electronics surveillance and that the government had not properly affirmed or denied that claim as required by federal law.

Douglas alleges high court bugged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas said today that former President Lyndon B. Johnson thought his White House phone was tapped.

Douglas also said he believes the Supreme Court's ultraconfidential conference, at which the justices discuss pending cases, had been bugged.

Douglas' assertions came in a dissent to what would normally have been a routine action denying bail to a criminal defendant.

"We who live in the District of Columbia know that electronic surveillance is commonplace," wrote Douglas. "I am indeed morally certain that the conference room of this court has been 'bugged'; and President Johnson during his term in the White House asserted to me that even his phone was tapped."

Douglas offered no substantiation for either claim.

In other action today, the court:

—agreed to review a lower court decision in a securities industry case that could sharply affect the future of suits on consumer and environmental protection. The dispute turns on how federal courts should manage class action suits, legal actions brought by an individual on behalf of himself and all others who would be affected.

Vending machine stickers being sold

Figures released Monday by Mrs. Opal Hugelmann, city collector, revealed that 196 vending machine permit stickers have been purchased since Oct. 1, when a crack-down on violators began.

City License Inspector Bob Brown, who is responsible for enforcing the regulations, coincided his crack-down with the introduction of a new and more equitable vending machine license schedule approved by the City Council recently.

All vending machine owners or operators in the city have until Oct. 30 to purchase and prominently display the correct license sticker for their machine. Brown notified merchants that violators will have their machines confiscated by the city.

Clarifying his position Monday, Brown said he would send written notices to violators, giving them a certain number of days in which to comply before their machines can be confiscated. Brown said he was not yet sure how long he would give violators to comply before confiscating their machines.

Seek funds for purchase of third urn

If enough money can be raised, Bothwell Hospital will still receive a yard ornament that once rested on the lawn of the city's first hospital, Mrs. Cline Cane announced Monday.

Mrs. Cane, Mrs. David Malmo and Mrs. James McNeal led a recent volunteer effort which resulted in the obtaining, at auction, of two urns that formerly belonged to Col. A. D. Jaynes. Jaynes' mansion was later transformed into Maywood Hospital, the city's first medical center. The two urns are scheduled to be placed on the mall of the New Municipal Building.

The three women, however, were unsuccessful in their effort to purchase a large yard fountain which also graced the Maywood Hospital's lawn for Bothwell. The ornament was purchased by Dr. Joe Bennet, who promised "that it would remain in Sedalia forever." Bennet has not revealed where the fountain will be displayed in the city.

Undaunted by their fountain-purchase failure, the three women began searching for addition relics of the Jaynes mansion suitable for display at the hospital and recently traced a third Jaynes urn to a Marshall antique owner, Virginia Howard.

Although the urn has not yet been purchased, Mrs. Cane said the Howard women agreed to "hold" the urn for the city if suitable funds can be obtained. Although declining to specify the agreed-upon price, Mrs. Cane said it was about half the cost of the recently-purchased urns which sold for $585 each.

Contributions to the urn fund should be sent by check to Mayor Jerry Jones' office in the Municipal Building, Mrs. Cane said.

Supreme Court agrees to rule on teachers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a lower court ruling that teachers paid with federal funds must be provided to church schools when they are provided to public schools.

The court will review this fall or winter a decision of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis directing Missouri to send teachers to private schools under an act providing federal aid for the education of poor children.

Missouri had declined to do so, although offering to provide programs for nonpublic school children under the federal act outside of regular schools hours.

The state's position was challenged in a suit filed on behalf of educationally deprived children attending a predominantly Negro and a predominantly Mexican-American school in Kansas City.

A U.S. District Court decision in favor of the state was reversed in a split decision of the appeals court.

In asking high court review, attorneys for the state said using federal funds to pay teachers in church schools would be an unconstitutional mingling of church and state.

"A religious school does not cease to be a religious school when a public school teacher walks in," they said.

Attorneys for the children said they were being denied equal rights. They said numerous witnesses in the trial testified that programs offered after school hours are not comparable.

Eidson does not plan to attend tonight

While it is possible that the full-time mayor proposal may again be the subject of discussion by the City Council at their meeting at 7:30 o'clock tonight, the most outspoken advocate of the measure indicated he does not plan to attend tonight's session.

Robert Eidson, local Bell Telephone Co. executive who has repeatedly challenged the council to implement what he maintains "is the expressed will of the people," said Monday he probably not make many more public appearances in behalf of his beliefs.

"This thing's beyond me now," Eidson said. "We've got an organization now and I will continue to serve in an advisory capacity to them, but it's not my show completely anymore."

Eidson was referring to the effort of the local Jaycees, who last week established a special committee to work towards obtaining a referendum on the measure. A referendum petition, if signed by a sufficient number of local citizens, would compel the council to authorize an election on the full-time mayor proposal.

Committee member Jim Reed Jr. told The Democrat-Capital Monday he was uncertain if any Jaycee committee members would attend the council session tonight.

"We've just got organized and haven't really had time yet to establish our program," said Reed, who said he did not know when the referendum petition campaign would begin.

It was also learned that bids will be taken on a new pick up truck for the city sewer department and a truck chassis for the city sanitation department.

Boston suburb blaze leaves 1,100 homeless

CHELSEA, Mass. (AP) — A wind-fed fire that raced across 20 blocks of wooden tenements and small businesses has left 1,100 persons homeless in this rundown Boston suburb.

Four firemen fighting the blaze were hospitalized for smoke inhalation. One was in poor condition, the other three fair. Two others were treated for smoke inhalation and released. No deaths were reported.

About 500 National Guardsmen roped off the desolate, charred expanse of the oldest section of the city, which was destroyed Sunday when a fire devoured dozens of crumbling buildings.

The homeless, most of them Spanish-speaking, blacks and elderly Jews, sought shelter with relatives and in a makeshift dormitory set up in an armory.

"I have lost everything!" said Henry Wogciechowski, 49. "It's a crying shame. All the people who live in the stricken area are poor people. Just look at all these people standing around crying! They have no place to go from here."

Residents of the estimated 60 dwelling places destroyed rushed through the streets ahead of the blaze, carrying plastic bags and suitcases stuffed with belongings.

At the height of the blaze, which officials said apparently started in an abandoned rag storage building, 3,000 to 4,000 persons were evacuated from their homes.

Sparks leaped from building to building as gusts up to 50 miles an hour swept across Boston Harbor.

"This is a conflagration of epic proportions," said Fire Chief Herbert C. Fothergill. "A conflagration such as this one creates its own winds of hurricane force."

The fire cut a path a half mile wide through the decaying industrial section of the community of 32,000.

Many of the industries were small businesses that reclaimed scrap metal, rags and tires. Much of the area had been scheduled for demolition through urban renewal.

About half of the 20-block area was leveled. The rest was a jumble of stark building skeletons and smoldering utility poles.

Cyclist's condition listed as 'serious'

A Sedalia youth, Gregory Butler, 19, 33 Elm Hills Trailer Court, was seriously injured Sunday evening shortly before 6 p.m. when the motorcycle he was riding flipped over at 28th and Ingram, causing Butler to strike a sign alongside the road.

According to the police report, Butler was riding a 1969 Honda south on Ingram when he applied his brakes and went into a skid, hit a crest or bump in the intersection and was thrown from the bike when it flipped.

He was taken by ambulance to Bothwell Hospital. A spokesman for the hospital told The Democrat-Capital that Butler was operated on sometime Sunday evening for internal injuries and was in the hospital's intensive care unit Monday morning with his condition listed as serious.

Lenient approach recommended

WASHINGTON (AP) — In sharp contrast to the President's view, a federal crime commission says most criminals should be treated as leniently as possible, because the tough approach has failed.

Penitentiaries should be reserved for only hard-core criminals and many offenders should go free with no more punishment than arrest and trial, the commission said.

While shifting toward a broad range of rehabilitative programs, the nation's prisons should guarantee inmates virtually all of the civil rights of other citizens, including conjugal visits, it continued.

The startlingly liberal report was issued today by the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals as part of a two-year study financed with a $1.75 million federal grant.

The commission said, "These changes must not be made out of sympathy for the criminal or disregard of the threat of crime to society. They must be made precisely because that threat is too serious to be countered by ineffective methods."

Incarceration has failed to curb crime, the report said. "Recidivism rates are notoriously high. Institutions do succeed in punishing, but they do not deter ... The mystery is that they have not contributed even more to increasing crime."

The commission consistently urged lawmen, judges and correction officials to administer "the least drastic means" in dealing with criminals and protecting society. President Nixon as recently as March 10 urged a tougher federal criminal code, saying, "The time has come for soft-headed judges and probation officers to show as much concern for the rights of innocent victims of crime as they do for the rights of convicted criminals," he said.

Taking the opposite tone, the commission proposed that:

—Outright release of persons convicted of minor crimes, first offenses and white-collar crime should be considered.

—No prison sentence should exceed five years except for murderers, professional criminals, and persistent dangerous offenders. Regardless of long sentences, few serve beyond five years, the report said.

—Maximum 25-year sentences should be allowed for hard-core violent offenders. The report omitted any mention of life terms and the death penalty.

—Thousands of offenders should be diverted from the process of arrest, trial, conviction and punishment and channeled through such social services as job counseling or treatment for alcoholism.

The commission endorsed the premise of liberal reformers that "crime and delinquency are symptoms of failure and disorganization in the community as well as in the offender himself."

—There should be no new construction of large prisons except in rare circumstances and none for juveniles in any case.

Several items stolen from parked auto

Thieves took several items and parts from a car owned by Donald Chapman, Whiteman AFB, sometime early Sunday morning while it was parked behind the Fireside lounge, 1975 West Broadway.

Chapman told police that he had parked his car in the parking lot Saturday evening and left it there when he was taken home by a friend around 9 p.m.

When he returned Sunday morning to get the car, he found that the car radio, a set of tools valued at $125, a wristwatch, and an IBM typewriter valued at $400 were missing. Also, the front and rear seats and the head and door liners had been removed from the vehicle.

The typewriter was reported in the locked trunk but was apparently noticed when the thieves removed the back seat.

A resident of the area told police that she saw a car drive around the Chapman vehicle several times about 2:30 a.m. Sunday.

Police could find no signs of forced entry into the vehicle.

In other police news, Lee Butts, 701 North Prospect, told police that a mini-bike, valued at $385, was taken from the garage of his home sometime Friday evening.

A tool box with an assortment of wrenches, sockets and screwdriver sets, valued at $250 was reported stolen from a truck belonging to Robert Dunn, 1002 South Grand, sometime Saturday or Sunday.

Johnny Bozarth, 600 North Quincy, reported to police that his truck windshield, worth $109, had been broken sometime Saturday evening, apparently with a rock.

Magistrate hears five cases Monday

Four persons were arraigned and another had his case dismissed in Pettis County Magistrate Court Monday morning.

Two Kansas Citians were arraigned on charges of stealing more than $50 in merchandise after they allegedly stole clothing valued at $146 Saturday from Connor-Wagoner store, 414 South Ohio.

Charged were Anita Olga Tillman, 23, and James Michael Bell, 24. The two were arrested Saturday by Sedalia police.

Magistrate Court Judge Frank Armstrong set bond for each at $5,000. Their preliminary hearings were set for Oct. 24. Both remain in the county jail.

In another case, Christine Van Dyne, 17, 421 South Lamine, was arraigned on a charge of stealing a controlled substance. Her preliminary hearing date was set for Nov. 1.

Miss Van Dyne is charged with selling marijuana Thursday to two teenage girls. She is free on $1,000 bond.

In a third case, John Butterbaugh, 36, 309 North Grand was brought before Judge Armstrong and charged with a fugitive warrant alleging that he fled from justice from Kansas. He was arrested by Sedalia police Saturday.

Butterbaugh is wanted in Columbus, Kan., on a stealing charge. He allegedly stole tools, cash, a tape player and a broiler Sept. 28 in Cherokee County, Kan. An extradition hearing is scheduled for Nov. 15.

Butterbaugh was sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary Jan. 18 this year in Pettis County Circuit Court after he pleaded guilty to a bogus check charge.

Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said Butterbaugh served about six months of the three-year sentence before he was placed on parole on July 23. He remains in the county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

In the last case, Judge Armstrong dismissed charges against Dusty Lee Smith, 17, 1414 East Fourth, after a preliminary hearing. Smith was charged with tampering with a motor vehicle without the owner's permission.

Smith was charged with operating a motorcycle Sept. 28 owned by Gary Lloyd Wasson, 814 East Fourth.

Judge Armstrong said he dismissed the case because it had not been proved that a crime had been committed.

Kitchen carpet poses problem

By POLLY CRAMER
Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — My kitchen floor was covered with vinyl tile laid on a wood base but then we covered it with indoor-outdoor carpet. I would like to know how to remove this carpet successfully so I could use the vinyl floor again. What process should be used for removing any glue left on the tiles? — MRS. G. O.

DEAR POLLY — This Pet Peeve is from an attendant in a laundromat who is amazed that some customers get any of their wash clean. Many pour the soap directly on the spindle of the machine where it sticks or else pour it on the floor and down the sides. They are lucky if half a cup gets in the machine. Same goes for machines that have a special area to pour soap in the water. Be sure this is not so jammed with the previous user's soap that yours does not even get through. If you think you are saving a quarter by overloading the machine you are wrong, for the customers who complain about their gray looking clothes are the ones who fill the machines so high there is barely room for agitation. — MARGE

DEAR POLLY — and Margaret who has chairs that are not high enough to use at her table — I refinish a lot of furniture and think it would be impossible to fix these chairs. So instead of tackling that problem, and taking into consideration the fact that she might ruin them, I suggest that she shortens the legs on the table. If they are wood, simply saw them off and if they are metal use a hack saw. Rubber tips can then be bought to cover the cut ends. — LYNDA

DEAR POLLY — Margaret could consider putting thick cushion pads on the seats of her chairs that are too low for her table. readymade ones made in such a variety of colors and designs that she could surely find some to complement her chairs and make them higher and more comfortable at the same time. — BECKY

Lessons to be learned from Agnew tragedy

WASHINGTON — Those who admire Spiro Agnew and the views he espoused so pugnaciously for almost five years are mourning his resignation following his admission of tax evasion in 1967.

Rowan

Those who have de-tested the vice president and his assaults on "radical liberals" and "effete snobs" are openly gleeful, gloating that this glibly sanctimonious advocate of "law and order" has been exposed as a felon.

But these are not times to continue the polarization of which Agnew once was a red-flag symbol. This is a time for us to deal seriously with the question of how this society can minimize crookedness and criminality in the top levels of government.

We can start by looking at a couple of lessons that leap out from the Agnew tragedy.

Lesson No. 1 is that we must start taking closer looks at, and selecting more carefully, the people who spend the public's money, do the public's business and have stewardship over national security.

It must now be apparent that, when great power is there for the taking, very few politicians will voluntarily admit to past indiscretions or crimes which might suggest they are unfit to hold power.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton wanted the vice presidential nomination too much to tell Sen. George McGovern about his medical record. Agnew craved the dubious power of that "warm bucket of spit" abomination we call the vice presidency too much to tell President Nixon he had failed to pay taxes on money passed to him in 1967 and that he had taken money from Maryland contractors which some people might consider bribes or payoffs.

The inescapable reality is that no politician with half a brain will ever volunteer anything to suggest that he is less than God's greatest gift to public service. So Lesson No. 2 is this: if the public wants the truth about those who hold power in this country, the people had better ensure that the First Amendment is not eroded and that we always have a free and courageous press.

If that sounds self-serving, so be it. The panoply of ugly facts and revelations which have gushed forth into the living rooms and autos and offices of the American people over the last 16 months ought to leave no doubt anywhere that to gag or restrict the press in any way would be to wipe out much of the public's chance to learn of official corruption and malfeasance.

Let us never forget that, even as he lied to the American people with assertions that the charges against him were "damned lies," the former vice president was seeking to muzzle the press. Agnew tried to portray the press as the vehicle used by an unscrupulous Justice Department to convict him unfairly in the court of public opinion.

We now have Agnew's admission of guilt on some of the charges, but during that period when he was criss-crossing the country making pious denials of EVERYTHING he built up a new wave of public hostility toward the press.

The anti-press campaign went so far that Agnew's lawyers got Judge Walter E. Hoffman to give them unprecedented authority to subpoena newsmen and grill them about the sources of their stories about the vice president. They even provoked Hoffman to make some gratuitous remarks about how "the press is often wrong," and about what Hoffman perceives to be a war between the press and the courts.

Agnew's resignation and the court proceedings surrounding it show that the press was serving the public's right to know when it revealed that the No. 2 official in the land was being investigated by top officials of his own party, with charges of bribery, extortion, tax evasion and conspiracy.

Not that Judge Hoffman was wrong in saying that the press is often wrong. It is — for the simple reason that news reporters and editors are just like judges. Some are brilliant, some dumb; some compassionate, others vindictive; some balanced in judgment, others psychotic beyond belief; a few humble, most oversupplied with ego.

Before Wednesday's stunning resignation, which made the Hoffman folderol about the press moot, there was real danger that millions of Americans would be misled to believe that the issue at hand was the righteousness of newsmen instead of the innocence and probity of Spiro Agnew.

We were perilously close to a new erosion of the First Amendment because a lot of people much preferred to believe that newsmen are a bunch of bastards rather than even think their vice president had failed to pay his taxes.

Democrats and Republicans have been killed politically by enterprising newsmen. So a lot of people of both parties are easily suckered into joining attacks on the First Amendment. But do we need more than Watergate or the Agnew case to convince people to leave alone the constitutional safeguards that have kept this nation great, and reasonably free, for two centuries?

New war, new politics in Mideast

By BRUCE BOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — The differences between this Arab-Israeli war and the 1967 struggle are important to note:

Though the Soviet Union, and this time China as well, are giving open vocal support to the Egyptian-Syrian attack, there appears far less danger than in 1967 of a big-power conflict growing out of this confrontation. At that time, President Johnson used the hot line to Moscow for the first time, to keep things cool.

Yet in another way the United States position is more difficult. Its natural disposition to approve cease-fire arrangements could in this instance be harmful to Israel, to whose survival as a nation we are committed.

As noted in a prior report, any speedy cease-fire call from the United Nations might certify a new Arab military presence on soil near the Suez in Sinai, and in Syria's Golan Heights — with resulting new uncertainty for Israel.

Ousting the Arabs could be harder this time. Both Egyptian and Syrian armed forces are better equipped, and some accounts say better trained, than in 1967. Furthermore, both in 1956 and 1967 Israel (convinced of imminent Arab invasion and in the latter year harassed by a sea blockade at the entry to the Gulf of Aqaba) mounted pre-emptive strikes. It had the initiative.

This time it was put on the defensive by a surprise Yom Kippur assault, and was not fully mobilized. It has the added handicap of needing, in the case of the Egyptian action, to move all the way across the forbidding Sinai desert to counterattack.

Israel, with just three million people in a land the size of New Jersey, can never afford a long war tying up its crucial young civilian manpower drawn in as reserves. Its economy would shrivel. Any heavy losses of men and equipment, especially planes, would be painfully damaging.

This danger inevitably puts high strain upon us, since we, while committed to Israel's safety, are anxious as well to avoid over-equipping it and thereby giving substance to professed Arab fears of Israeli expansion. We must supply the sustenance of survival, but no more.

The line is delicate, partly because we long have tried to woo the Arabs by evidences of fairness, more recently because oil-rich Arab lands threaten to limit expanded output as a lever in the Mideast conflict, which would hurt us just when our dependence on imports from these nations is growing.

Israel, with just three million people in a land the size of New Jersey, can never afford a long war tying up its crucial young civilian manpower drawn in as reserves. Its economy would shrivel. Any heavy losses of men and equipment, especially planes, would be painfully damaging.

Still, that may be easy talk. Western Europe is almost wholly reliant on Arab oil and could take more. Japan draws from there and also could take more. And where would we get the imports we need increasingly?

Canada plans to cut a fair chunk out of its oil exports to us. Yet in the famous Athabasca oil sands in Alberta, it has reserves as large or larger than in the Mideast. The trouble is development is just beginning and is sure to be costly, what with long, cold winters, necessary experiments in methods of extracting the oil which in some places lies thousands of feet deep.

The Arab threat may never materialize. Iraq never ceased sending oil during the 1967 war. Nevertheless, the situation dramatizes the differences between then and now.

Thirty-eight young men, fifteen from the county and twenty-three from the city of Sedalia, will report at the Armory Monday, preparatory to being sent to one of the reforestation camps.

Ford new factor in GOP politics

President Nixon's nomination of Rep. Gerald Ford as vice president seems assured of quick congressional approval.

With 25 years' experience in Congress, eight of them as House minority leader, the Michigan lawmaker's major role will be to sell the Nixon administration's programs to Congress. Ford is well-liked on both sides of the aisle, and can't help but improve relations between Congress and the administration, which need a lot of improving.

At Friday night's festive ceremony in the White House, President Nixon made no mention of the agony the nation had just been through that resulted in Vice President Spiro Agnew's stepping down. This was perhaps just as well; the American people would like nothing better than to believe that the Ford nomination does indeed mark "a new beginning" toward national unity and strength.

which is how the President described the occasion.

Known primarily as a loyal worker in the House, Gerald Ford has not generally been credited with having strong political ambitions, such as those that motivate a John Connally, Nelson Rockefeller or Ronald Reagan.

However, Ford did court the GOP vice presidential nominations in 1964 and 1968, the very role that has now been thrust upon him by fortune. High office often tends to change people, so Ford may well turn into a viable presidential contender in his own right three years from now.

This could cause complications for some of the potential GOP standard-bearers for 1976, who suddenly perceived a more open field with Agnew's demise. Ford has three years in which to build his image with a much wider segment of the population, and at the end of that time it could be a whole new ball game.

Merry-go-round

Behind the scenes of Agnew drama

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — At 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Judah Best, the principal attorney for Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, picked up a phone in the Baltimore courthouse and, using a credit card, called a direct number inside the White House.

The call was answered by George Kaufmann, the constitutional scholar at Best's Washington firm, Colson & Shapiro.

"Is the secretary in his office?" Best asked.

Kaufmann said he was, and waiting.

This was the dress rehearsal for Agnew's resignation. From our sources, we are able to tell the minute-by-minute details of the drama behind the resignation.

A 1966 law stipulates that such resignations "must be delivered in to the office of the Secretary of State." It was arranged for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to be in his West Wing office, rather than at the State Department.

Best then went to Judge Walter E. Hoffman and told him it would be necessary to use the judge's telephone later. Hoffman gave his permission.

The courtroom was crowded with spectators who had come to hear motions on Agnew's subpoenas of newsmen, an attempt to learn the source of stories attributed to Justice Department officials. Assistant U.S. attorneys were also there, sitting in the jury box. And a number of edgy Secret Servicemen, trying to appear inconspicuous, guarded the room.

A Washington lawyer who was seeking to intervene in the newsmen's case tried to go behind the bar, but was ejected by marshalls. He then tried to take a seat in the jury box. Secret Servicemen moved toward him.

"Get him out of here before they kill him," one of Agnew's lawyers whispered to a marshal, and the lawyer, still unaware of what was happening, was hustled away.

At 1:58, Baltimore's U.S. Attorney George Beall entered the courtroom, and there were gasps when the spectators realized he was accompanied by Attorney General Elliot Richardson and Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen. They stood in a receiving line, and shook hands with Best and Agnew's two New York lawyers, Jay Topkis and Martin London.

"Mr. Attorney General, are you prepared to honor the agreement?" Best asked.

"Certainly I am," Richardson said, and he showed Best his 40-page statement.

The agreement had been hammered out between 12:15 and 3 a.m. Saturday at the Marriott hotel at the Miami airport. The negotiators were Best and White House counsel Fred Buzhardt. It was a climax to the weeks of earlier plea bargaining, which had been bogged down by ponderous language and heavy ideas.

People close to the final negotiations told my associate George Clifford that Buzhardt and Best were able to pick up the bargaining where it had been abandoned in September. They also insisted that press stories about the bargaining had nothing to do with the temporary suspension.

"Buzhardt did what he had to do," one source told us. "When the deal was cut, he stepped out of the picture and turned it over to Richardson."

Agnew and Richardson approved the settlement on Tuesday, and Agnew called some loyal friends that night after a speech in New York. "All he said was 'Thank you,'" one Agnew friend told us. He said Agnew did not mention his plans to resign.

There were more gasps in the courtroom when Agnew entered, surrounded by more Secret Servicemen, and walked to the defense table.

"Mr. Vice President, I have received the word of the attorney general of the United States that he is prepared to honor his agreement," Best whispered. "Do you authorize me to cause the resignation to be delivered?"

"Oh, yes," Agnew said firmly.

Best called the White House number again, and Kaufmann answered. "You are authorized to deliver the resignation to the Secretary of State," Best said.

Best stayed on the line while Kaufmann walked into Kissinger's office. Kaufmann, a naturalized citizen from Austria, handed the paper to the naturalized citizen from Germany. With a fine-point pen, Kissinger initiated a copy "HK," and wrote the time — "1405."

Kaufmann delivered another copy with a letter for the President to Gen. Alexander Haig, then went back to the phone and told Best the grim ceremony was complete.

Best whispered to Agnew that the letters were delivered, and passed a note to Topkis.

In a few more minutes, the former vice president of the United States stood in the court to plead nolo contendere to charges he did not pay taxes on $10,000 of his income. The drama was complete.

Today's thoughts

Be not wicked over much, neither be a fool; why should you die before your time? It is good that you should take hold of this, and from that withhold not your hand; for he who fears God shall come forth from them all. — Eccl. 7:17, 18.

We find God twice — once within, once without us: within us as an eye, without us as a light. — Jean Paul Richter, German author.

Our deeds still travel with us from afar, and what we have been makes us what we are. — George Eliot, English novelist.

Pray for our leaders

The average American citizen is quite disturbed over affairs in Washington. We find it difficult to accept some of the recent developments on the political scene. But just how many of us are willing to admit that perhaps WE are partly to blame. Are we partly to blame — you and I — because we have shirked certain responsibilities?

I so well recall a little personal incident that happened at the time of the late President Kennedy's inauguration... My dear little 90-year-old mother (now deceased) and I had watched the proceedings on television. She could not hear well, but by sitting very close to her I could explain to her what was going on. She was quite impressed with it all.

When she was put to bed that evening (she was an invalid) the usual prayers were said and the light turned out. A short time later she called to me with a great urgency in her voice. I hurried to her bedside... She took my hand and looked up at me and said, "We mustn't forget to pray for our new President."

I have never forgotten this, but I must admit to my shame that sometimes I have forgotten to pray for our president and those others who hold high offices. Perhaps if all of us had been a little more diligent in our prayers, things might have gone differently not only on the political scene, but in other areas too.

Floor squeaks, nail pops, and underlayment can be reduced through use of a glued plywood floor system. This relatively new construction system utilizes construction glue to bond structural plywood directly to floor joists. The glue is so strong that it causes the plywood and floor joists to act as a single rigid unit.

Application of the glue requires no major change in normal construction practice. The glue, available in easy to use caulking type cartridges, is applied directly to the upper edge of floor joists just before placing the plywood. The plywood is then nailed in place.

New information
New guide sheets from the Missouri College of Agriculture recently received in the Extension office were Forward Contracting Cash Crops, Concrete Pavement for Livestock, Grain Drying: Low Temperature vs. Natural Air; Genetics of Coat Color of Horses, Health Hints for Your Horse and Variety Tests of Winter Wheat in Missouri. Single copies of these guide sheets are free for the asking at the Extension Center.

Overdrying
While it is critical to dry grain to a safe moisture level, drying beyond that point will cost you money. The water in the grain is worth money when you sell it. For example, you remove 1.98 pounds of water from a bushel of soybeans when you drop the moisture from 13 per cent to 10 per cent. When soybeans are selling for $6, the reduced water would have been worth 20 cents per bushel.

Possible shortages
Since fertilizer shortages occurred in some areas this last spring, it seems that it would be safe to conclude that these same shortages or worse will likely be around in the spring of 1974.

Fall applications of fertilizer may help to avoid potential supply problems next spring. Fall application of fertilizer will also help to avoid the heavy work load that sometimes is experienced under adverse weather conditions.

Since producers will be striving for the highest per acre production, they should carefully consider the kind and amount of fertilizer to be used. The demand for feed grains and soybeans, along with potential fertilizer shortages indicates that this is a poor time to use too little or the wrong kinds of fertilizer. Unless producers have a current soil test, it would be well to take new soil samples to the local Extension Center for testing before they get too busy with harvest. Results of the soil tests will tell what fertilizer is needed and will set the stage for following harvest machinery with fertilizer spreading equipment.

TV station eliminates 13 positions

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A continued drop in membership contributions has resulted in the elimination of 13 jobs at KETC-TV Channel 9 here. Robert C. Glazier, manager of the educational television station, said over the weekend.

But Glazier also announced that the station will continue its coverage of the Senate Watergate hearings.

Income from production grants, school services and membership contributions all declined during the fiscal quarter that ended Sept. 30, leading to the manpower reduction, he said.

Membership income for the month of September, Glazier pointed out, amounted to only half the average monthly income during the preceding six months.

He said volunteers would be sought to assist the 72-man staff in broadcasting and other operations.

Although Glazier said the station will continue carrying unabridged coverage of the Watergate hearings, he said the telecasts will be limited to Saturdays beginning at 1 p.m.

But since Channel 9 does not normally operate on Saturdays, the Watergate broadcasts will add considerably to operating expenses, he said. KETC-TV previously televised the hearings nightly after each session.

indicates that many farmers have cancelled plans to boost hog production. Others quit the business.

Last March, an official survey of farmers showed that hog producers intended to increase pork production by 5 per cent. Judging from previous experience, we expected that the actual increase would be more than that.

Then, many consumers joined in a meat boycott — and demanded that prices be rolled back. A survey made at the first of September and reported on Sept. 21 showed that farmers have not increased hog production, and are not planning to do so.

Defoliation
Late planted soybeans and sorghum may present problems as harvesting operations get under way. Where fields are infested with growing weeds or where the crop is still partially green and succulent, an effective desiccant can be used to advantage.

The soybean plant, like the corn plant, dies after seed has matured. But when the beans no longer grow it gives weeds an opportunity to develop; particularly if soil moisture and temperature are favorable. In the case of grain sorghum a different situation exists. Being an indeterminate species, sorghum will continue to grow and to send up new heads as long as growing conditions are favorable. Consequently with adequate moisture grain sorghum fields will have green leaves and emerging heads until low temperatures inhibit further growth.

The only defoliant that can be used on soybeans if the crop is to be used for feed or food is Ortho Paraquat. Paraquat used properly will defoliate beans and will do a satisfactory job of drying up most of the weed growth in the crop. Apply at a rate of 1/2 to 1 pint per acre — use the higher rate if weed infestation is heavy. Add 1 quart of a non-ionic surfactant for each 100 gallons of spray. The sprayer should be calibrated to discharge from 20 to 40 gallons per acre. Apply when beans are fully mature and when half the leaves have dropped. Immature beans will be injured. Do not pasture until 15 days following treatment. Remove livestock at least 30 days before slaughter.

In the case of grain sorghum there is no desiccant available that can be used in compliance with EPA regulations in 1973. This is indeed unfortunate but nevertheless it is a regulation now in effect.

Legumes in pastures
Legumes are an economical way to improve pasture quality and should be included in fall seedings. Beating the drums for legumes in new and renovated pastures is Howell Wheaton, University of Missouri-Columbia forage specialist.

More care is needed to get a stand when legumes are seeded with grass than when grass is seeded alone. However, the results are well worth the extra care, he believes.

Legumes that work well in pastures throughout Missouri are red and ladino clover, lespedeza and, especially for dairymen, alfalfa.

Wheaton claims three advantages of grass-legume pasture mixtures over straight grass. First, he says, animal performance is better; higher average daily gains for beef cattle and more pounds of milk per day from dairy cattle. Second, forage production is high in late June, July and early August. Third, costs are a little less for the grass-legume mixture.

A reason for difference in costs is that generally nitrogen fertilizer does not need to be applied to grass-legume mixtures. Legumes have the capability of providing nitrogen for the air.

In research at the UMC Southwest Center near Mt. Vernon, it was shown that as little as 20 per cent legumes in a pasture stand resulted in more animal response than on straight grass fertilized with 60 to 75 pounds of nitrogen per acre.

Research leaves no doubt pasture quality is improved and animal production increased by using legumes with grasses.

The forage specialist reminds that lespedeza is an annual and should be winter seeded.

The other legumes may be planted any time in the fall.

Nixon will soon learn of his Supreme Court efforts

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five years ago when Richard M. Nixon was elected President, one of his principal goals was to reshape the Supreme Court to bring it into line with his own interpretations of the Constitution.

He'll soon learn how successful he's been in appointing justices who agree with his views of separation of powers and executive privilege.

For the Supreme Court now represents Nixon's last hope for judicial support for his argument that under the Constitution, only he has the authority to say whether the tapes of his conversations about the Watergate scandal can be turned over to a federal grand jury.

The President's lawyers have failed to convince U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica or the U.S. Court of Appeals that his argument is valid.

Ironically, the opposition to the President's position in the tapes case, often has seemed to borrow arguments Nixon used in criticizing Supreme Court decisions during the 15 years Earl Warren was chief justice.

As President, Nixon has had the opportunity to name four men to the Supreme Court. Each time he said he had sought a man he regarded as a "strict constructionist," one who would not read into the Constitution powers beyond those expressly included by the original framers.

But the appeals court said the President's lawyers were trying to "refashion the Constitution" with their claim that he was immune from court orders.

"The Constitution makes no mention of special presidential immunities," the five-judge majority said in its opinion. "Indeed, the executive branch generally is afforded none. This silence cannot be ascribed the oversight."

Both the courts and special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox also seem to have stolen another of the President's favorite themes, law and order.

Cox has hit hard in his arguments on the theme that the tapes are evidence in a grand jury investigation of possible criminal activity. Again and again, the special prosecutor has said "the grand jury has a right to every man's evidence," and, "the highest executive officials, like all citizens, are subject to the rule of law."

The appeals court referred to Cox's "uniquely powerful showing" and echoed his words that the President "is not above the law's commands."

Saudi Arabian commitment does not mean oil flow cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commitment of Saudi Arabian troops to the war against Israel represents an apparent diplomatic setback to the United States but does not mean that King Faisal is about to turn off the flow of oil.

Like Jordan, whose "elite forces" entered the Middle East war Saturday, Saudi Arabia is considered a moderate Arab state with potential influence on Egypt and Syria as well as Israel's more radical foes. President Nixon had urged restraint in personal messages to Faisal, but Sunday the official Saudi Arabian radio said troops were on their way to the Golan Heights in Syria to fight against Israel.

Faisal's move followed consultation with Presidents Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Hafez Assad of Syria. "This was in line with his majesty's conviction that our blood should mix with other Arab blood in defense of honor and dignity and to reclaim the land and liberate the sacred heritage," said the official Riyadh Radio.

However, Arab newspapers said only a token force of about 1,000 men was being sent to battle.

The U.S. embassy in Paris reported Faisal had sent word to American officials that James Aikens, the new U.S. ambassador, would be welcome and should take up his post as soon as possible. Aikens is on his way to his Saudi Arabian post.

U.S. officials here said Faisal's latest message to Nixon Friday did not threaten an oil embargo if Washington sent new arms to Israel.

Nixon and Secretary of State

Henry A. Kissinger discussed details of a U.S. resupply operation at the White House Sunday. Officials said plans called for the shipment of planes, tanks and other equipment.

Alexander M. Haig Jr., the White House chief of staff, told newsmen: "Our policy is clearly stated. It's to maintain the balance and to continue with our arms shipments."

The Soviet Union's airlift of equipment to Egypt and Syria was reported by Pentagon officials to be continuing around the clock. Haig said Nixon and Kissinger had engaged in "an intensive discussion of the special requirements coming out of the situation" in the Middle East.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel had called on Kissinger at the State Department Saturday. The secretary has publicly pledged that even threat of an oil embargo would not deter the United States from supporting Israel.

"We have to pursue the right course and will take the consequences," he said at a news conference. Meanwhile, it was learned that the United States is considering a Middle

Farmers well on way to record export year

By DON KENDALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — American farmers are well on their way to another record year for exports, according to the most recent calculations by the Agriculture Department.

During the first two months of the 1973-74 fiscal year, which began July 1, farm exports totaled a value of $2.69 billion, nearly double their pace in July-August last year.

The statistics, reported by the Economic Research Service, showed exports of grain and grain products accounted for the bulk of the two-month value, about $1.58 billion.

Some USDA officials, including Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, have predicted farm exports in 1973-74 could total $16-to-$20 billion in value. That would compare with $12.9 billion sold overseas in the year ended last June 30.

In another report, the department reviewed last season's exports on the basis of value of products shipped per state.

This is based primarily on what a state produces and how its share stacks up with others.

Statistically, 10 states accounted for about 75 per cent of the exports, approximately $7.6 billion worth, last season. In order, as listed by the research service, they are:

- Illinois $1.3 billion.
- Iowa $1.09 billion.
- Texas $798.7 million.
- Kansas $775.2 million.
- California $774.3 million.
- Indiana $607.6 million.
- Minnesota $597.2 million.
- Nebraska $556.1 million.
- North Carolina $526 million.
- Missouri $508.3 million.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says manufactured protein from soybeans is adding a new dimension to human diets and that such food could become much more popular in the future.

Although relatively small now, the soy food menu is gaining in its variety, a report by the Foreign Agricultural Service said today.

Items ranging from soy flour and grits to textured protein resembling meat already are available in limited quantity.

But officials say that even including exports those products account for only about 3 per cent of the soybean use in the United States. Animal feeds require about 85 per cent of the soybean protein, and the remainder goes into industrial uses.

"However, a much brighter picture is in prospect, with some experts predicting that the U.S. soy protein market might reach $2 billion by 1980, contrasted with $75 million or so today," the report said.

Some sources predict that as much as 20 per cent of the U.S. meat supply by 1980 will be made up of imitation cuts made from soy protein material, the report said. Department experts put the 1980 estimate at about 8 per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Japan is raising more chickens of its own, the Agriculture Department expects U.S. producers will continue to sell substantial quantities of poultry meat there.

Officials said today that Japan is expected to buy 11,000 to 12,000 metric tons of U.S. poultry meat this year, an increase of about one-third from 1972.

Democrats cautioned on winning new seats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Democratic leaders have cautioned their party not to expect a windfall of congressional seats next year from Watergate and the Spiro T. Agnew case.

Democratic National Chairman Robert F. Strauss predicted Sunday that Democrats would pick up two to four Senate seats and five or six House seats in the 1974 congressional elections.

Strauss appeared at the 1973 Western States Democratic Conference over the weekend.

Publication of edition is cancelled

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The daily morning newspaper here has been forced to cancel publication of a special edition to raise money for children's agencies in the city because of the nationwide newsprint shortage.

G. Duncan Bauman, publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, told readers of the decision to cancel publication of the special red-bannered "Old Newsboys Day" edition on Nov. 21 in the newspaper's Monday morning editions.

"Although there will be no aprons, buttons, or newspapers this year, I am hopeful that the spirit of Old Newsboys will prevail," Bauman said in urging persons to donate in any amount to this year's needy children campaign despite the absence of the special newspaper.

In 16 previous years, volunteers have sold the Old Newsboys Day editions of the Globe-Democrat for any size donation and have distributed more than $1 million in that time to some 150 children's agencies.

The paper will publish a regular edition on Nov. 21, Bauman said.

Rams go 5-0

Hadl, Jackson combine for 4 touchdowns

By HOWARD SMITH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Dallas Cowboy cornerback Charlie Waters spent much of Sunday's game in Los Angeles chasing speedy Ram receiver Harold Jackson. But he didn't catch up with him until after the game.

"You're not All-American man," declared Waters, grasping Jackson's hand. "You're All-World."

Jackson looked at least that good, catching touchdown passes of 63, 16, 67 and 36 yards from John Hadl as the Rams topped the Cowboys 37-31. Jackson hauled in seven passes for the afternoon for a whopping 238 yards.

The rejuvenated Rams are now 5-0 on the year, one of only two unbeaten National Football League teams. The Minnesota Vikings, 17-13 winners over the San Francisco 49ers, are also 5-0.

Elsewhere, the Pittsburgh Steelers dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten, falling to Cincinnati 19-7; the Buffalo Bills beat the Baltimore Colts 31-13; the Denver Broncos beat the Houston Oilers 48-20; the New York Jets edged the New England Patriots 9-7; the Oakland Raiders downed the San Diego Chargers 27-17; the Atlanta Falcons buried the Chicago Bears 46-6; the New Orleans Saints upset the Detroit Lions 20-13; the Philadelphia Eagles edged the St. Louis Cardinals 27-24; the Washington Redskins took the New York Giants 21-3; and the Kansas City Chiefs played to a 10-10 tie with the Green Bay Packers.

The Miami Dolphins play the Cleveland Browns tonight at Cleveland in the Monday night game.

Vikings 17, 49ers 13
Minnesota withstood an aerial barrage from San Francisco's Steve Spurrier, who completed 31 of 48 passes for 320 yards. Safety Paul Krause intercepted Spurrier twice in the fourth quarter, however, to kill 49er drives.

Bengals 19, Steelers 7
Cincinnati, faced with an early elimination from the AFC Central Division race, came out breathing fire against the Steelers. Rookie Charles "Booby" Clark ran for 112 yards and one touchdown, and Horst Muhlmann kicked four field goals for the winners. The Bengal defense held the usually explosive Pittsburgh offense scoreless until the middle of the final period.

Bills 31, Colts 13
The Baltimore defense held O.J. Simpson to just 26 yards rushing in the first half but he ran wild the last two periods, winding up with 166. Simpson scored twice, once on a 78-yard jaunt, as the surprising Bills increased their record to 4-1 and remained tied for the American Conference East lead.

Broncos 48, Oilers 20
Ex-Oiler Charley Johnson had a big day for Denver, completing nine of 19 passes for 214 yards and four touchdowns—three to Haven Moses.

Jets 9, Patriots 7
Bill Demory, a rookie free agent pressed into service after the Jets lost quarterback Joe Namath and Al Woodall to injuries, directed the New York offense on drives that resulted in three Bobby Howfield field goals.

Raiders 27, Chargers 17
Oakland Coach John Madden refused to change quarterbacks despite a poor showing by Ken Stabler in the first half. Madden stuck with Stabler and Stabler responded by completing eight of 11 passes, two for touchdowns, in the second half.

Falcons 46, Bears 6
Atlanta, which hadn't scored a touchdown in three games, scored three of them in a four-minute span of the third period to break the game open. Bob Lee apparently solved the club's quarterbacking problems by hitting on 11 of 13 tosses for 181 yards and two touchdowns.

Saints 20, Lions 13
Fullback Bill Butler's one-yard plunge with 39 seconds left gave the Saints a surprising second straight victory. The score was set up by little Howard Stevens' 48-yard kickoff return.

Redskins 21, Giants 3
The Washington defense picked off four Norm Snead passes. Dave Robinson returning one 28 yards for a touchdown and Pat Fischer setting up another touchdown with a 67-yard return.

Gabriel, Eagles stun Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "I don't remember any ending like this," Roman Gabriel insisted, and neither did the rest of the Philadelphia Eagles.

The lowly Eagles were apparently headed Sunday for just another routine loss until the brawny Gabriel, a veteran of 12 pro seasons, unfurled his right arm in the game's final minutes.

And the St. Louis Cardinals, instead of gaining a third National Football League triumph, were stunned 27-24 by two late Gabriel touchdown passes including one at the final gun.

"We haven't been quitting and today we finally made it," proclaimed the 33-year-old Gabriel, who unloaded his bombs to Harold Carmichael and rookie Don Zimmerman after St. Louis took a 24-13 lead with 4:41 to go.

"They say a quitter never wins and a winner never quits," the 6-foot-4 quarterback observed. "To win one like this keeps you going."

Gabriel, the NFL's Most Valuable Player in 1969 with the Los Angeles Rams, completed 29 of 45 passes for 379 yards and suffered no interceptions.

But until the Cards' Jim Hart hooked up with Ahmad Rashad for 65 yards and the 11-point St. Louis lead, the Eagle rifleman's mark was a more modest 19 of 34.

Then Gabriel whipped passes for short yardage to Tom Sullivan and Tom Bailey, extended his arm for missiles to Carmichael and finally hit Carmichael for 27 yards and a touchdown.

St. Louis needed to kill only a minute and 46 seconds following an onside kickoff but sent Donny Anderson on three runs producing only eight yards.

A fourth-down try by Anderson failed at Philadelphia's 45 and Gabriel, after being spilled for a 10-yard loss, used 34 of 41 seconds remaining to move to the St. Louis 24.

"I knew it would be the last play of the game," said the dark-haired Gabriel, who next fired rapidly to the 6-foot-3 Zimmerman on a slant from the left.

Zimmerman snared the ball at the three in the clutches of

Mules get early start

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — About 300 students, mostly coeds, gathered in the Central Missouri State University gym Sunday night and cheered happily when 20 basketball players started their first practice at one minute after midnight.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association has a rule that basketball practice can't start before Oct. 15.

Coach Jim Kampen and his squad decided to be the first in the conference—The Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association—to hit the boards.

"This is no gimmick," Kampen said. "The team just got excited and wanted to get off to a little different start this year."

The fans, most of them from girls' dorms, chose sides and cheered during an hour-long scrimmage. One girl brought a supply of popcorn and lemonade.

Willie Mays (24) bends low to watch this key play (left) in the 10th inning of the second game of the World Series Sunday in Oakland. The way Mays saw the play, teammate Bud Harrelson got past Oakland catcher Ray Fosse safely. But the way home plate umpire Augie Donatelli (right) saw it, Fosse tagged Harrelson. Mays drops to his knees and pleads his case, but that went to no avail. The Mets pushed across four runs in the 12th, cashing in on back-to-back errors by A's second baseman Mike Andrews to even the series at one game apiece, 10-7. (UPI)

Mets square World Series in 12, 10-7

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets are back home today with a split in the first two games of the World Series after battling the sun, umpire Augie Donatelli and the Oakland A's.

All three elements gave the National Leaguers fits Sunday before the Mets pulled out a zany, 10-7, 12-inning victory in Oakland.

"I think we'll look better in New York," says Don Hahn, a Met outfielder who had to deal with the treacherous sun in the Oakland Coliseum. "The Coliseum was an awfully tough park to field in... one of the toughest I've ever been in."

Cleon Jones verified Hahn's report. The Met left fielder lost a ball in that tortuous sun in the first inning, giving Joe Rudi a gift double in a two-run Oakland uprising.

"It was the worst," said

Jones, "the absolute worst. I've never played in a major league ballpark where the sun is that bad."

The Mets weren't exactly thrilled with the umpiring, either. They had an opportunity to break a 6-6 tie in the 10th inning with runners at first and third and one out.

Felix Millan lifted a fly ball to Rudi in short left and Bud Harrelson tagged up and tried to score from third.

But Donatelli called him out on a bang-bang play at home. "He never touched me," said Harrelson, talking about the close play at home with A's catcher Ray Fosse.

Donatelli's decision brought several Mets storming from the dugout. Like Harrelson, they thought that Fosse missed the tag. Willie Mays, the on-deck batter, was literally down on his knees pleading with the umpire.

"There's no question in my mind that I was safe," Harrelson said after the storm had died down and the Mets had locked up Game No. 2, "but there was a question in Donatelli's mind."

The double play killed off the Mets for the moment, but they weren't completely dead as it turned out. They scored four runs in a whacky 12th inning to break the deadlock. Then, George Stone came into the tense game and nailed it down for New York after Tug McGraw gave up the A's final run.

The whole scene was vividly reminiscent of the Mets' September pennant drive, when all kinds of unlikely crazy bounces helped them win the National League flag. "We felt like we would never give up," said McGraw, who pitched six fine innings of relief before needing help himself. But you gotta believe it—we've been doing things like this for the last eight weeks."

When the Mets made a rush for the National League flag, they capitalized on every conceivable break in the baseball book.

Ditto Sunday.

Trailing 3-2, the Mets scored four times in the sixth inning after a walk to Cleon Jones, a single by John Milner and a hit batsman that loaded the bases. Hahn beat out an infield single for one run. Harrelson singled to right for another and then Jerry Grote and Hahn both scored on an infield error.

After the A's scored their fourth run on a double by Reggie Jackson in the seventh and tied the score at 6-6 with a two-run rally in the ninth, the Mets took command of the flow of the game.

Denied earlier opportunities to score, they finally put it out of reach in the 12th as Mays singled home the go-ahead run and the Mets pushed across three more tallies on two errors by Oakland second baseman Mike Andrews. It was one of five errors made by the fumbling A's.

"I feel sorry for Andrews, just like I felt sorry for Felix Millan the day before," said

Oakland Manager Dick Williams, talking about Millan's costly error that helped the A's beat the Mets 2-1 in Saturday's opener.

The erratic fielding produced a total of six errors in the game, which at times took on the aspect of a sandlot affair. Adding to the sandlot atmosphere was the time of the game—a record four hours and 13 minutes for the World Series. Also a total of 11 pitchers was used by both sides, and that tied a world series record. Of course, that wicked sun didn't do much to help the professional aspect of the game.

Not only did Jones lose a ball in the high sky, but so did Mays. The sun swallowed up Deron Johnson's drive in the ninth inning as Mays skidded to his feet in a last-ditch try for the ball.

It fell for a double, igniting the A's rally.

With the Oakland sun behind them, the Mets hoped to find their place in the sun Tuesday night in the third game of the series at Shea Stadium.

Tom Seaver will pitch for the Mets and Jim "Catfish" Hunter for the A's in a battle of right-handed aces. Manager Yogi Berra feels he could have a good hand.

"I'll take a split in Oakland anytime," said Berra, "anybody would."

Faces possible fine

Finley announcement irks Kuhn

OAKLAND (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn is peeved again with Charles O. Finley, controversial owner of the Oakland Athletics and Finley faces a possible post-World Series fine.

"I plan to wait until after the Series to make a judgment," Kuhn said Sunday. "I don't want a matter like this to mar the series."

The commissioner charged Finley with defying the commissioner's office and indulging in bad taste by making a public announcement during Saturday's opening game involving a player eligibility problem.

The A's asked permission from the New York Mets to activate Manny Trillo, an infielder, to bring the Oakland roster to full 25-player strength.

The A's had fallen one man short when Juan Morales, a catcher, was sold to Montreal in September—after the Aug. 31 freezing of Series' eligibles.

The move could be made only with the assent of the rival Mets. Bob Scheffing, general manager of the Mets, was willing but Chub Feeney, president of the National League, firmly said, "No."

Finley was told that the refusal must not be announced publicly.

During Saturday's game, the Athletics announced to the press and the stands that the Athletics had made the request to the Mets only to be refused.

The fans booed loudly.

The announcement was made solely for the purpose of embarrassing the National League club. Kuhn told Finley in a stern letter, reminding the A's owner that such actions can be taken only with the consent of the commissioner's office.

"It's grossly unfair," said Finley, who was fined twice last season.

The A's owner was fined for remarks made about the commissioner after Kuhn injected himself into the contract negotiations of A's holdout Vida Blue. He also was fined for giving World Series bonuses last year in violation of baseball rules.

Australian Evonne Goolagong topped Helga Masthoff of West Germany 7-6, 6-3 in the women's international round-robin final. The victory was worth $5,000.

Ashford rites scheduled for Tuesday in Marshall

Volney C. Ashford

MARSHALL, Mo. (AP) — Funeral services will be at the United Methodist Church here Tuesday for Dr. Volney C. Ashford, former athletic director and football coach at Missouri Valley College.

Ashford, 65, was pronounced dead Sunday of a heart attack on arrival at a hospital here after being stricken while playing golf at the municipal course.

A 1931 graduate of Missouri Valley, he compiled a record of 197 victories, 55 losses and 12 ties in 28 years of coaching at the school. He led the school to 14 Missouri College Athletic Union titles, nine bowl games and, at one point, 41 straight victories.

Ashford is a member of the Helms Football Hall of Fame. He served in various capacities with the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, the American Football Coaches Association and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Survivors include the widow, Zelma, of the home and a son, John Ashford of Jefferson City, administrative assistant to Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick.

Jim: "Here is a letter from Edward B. Stauffer of Cape Coral, Fla. He wants us to show the Mississippi heart hand again in our column."

Oswald: "Let's oblige. The hand was originally dealt on a Mississippi River boat by some crooked gamblers to fleece a man out of all his money on one hand. The game was bridge (the grandfather of contract). In bridge the dealer made trump; all hands were played at the one level; either opponent could double and there were unlimited doubles and redoubles."

Jim: "I see. The victim would make hearts trump. West would double and doubles and redoubles would continue until the penalty for a one trick set would be everything the victim could be expected to pay. Incidentally, why was the hand dealt in hearts, not spades?"

Oswald: "In bridge, hearts was the ranking suit."

Jim: "At contract, South will bid seven hearts and be down seven tricks. There is a funny story about this. Someone stuck this hand in a duplicate game. Top score went to a player who got excited and bid seven no-trump. He was only down six while everyone else went down seven."

Emotions create physical problems

Dear Ann Landers: Since you frequently remind your readers that emotional problems can create physical problems, I am sending the findings of Dr.

Thomas H. Holmes, a psychiatrist at the University of Washington School of Medicine in Seattle. He has listed 43 events that create emotional stress in order of their impact.

Dr. Holmes' theory is that any change, pleasant or unpleasant, can create susceptibility to illness. He advises against making several consecutive changes in living patterns when one has a choice. Such changes, he said, should be postponed or cancelled. Here is the list and scale of impact:

EVENTS SCALE OF IMPACT
Death of spouse	100
Divorce	73
Marital separation	65
Jail term	63
Death of close family member	63
Personal injury or illness	53
Marriage	50
Fired at work	47
Marital reconciliation	45

Pregnancy	40
Sex difficulties	39
Gain of new family member	39
Business readjustment	39
Change in financial status	38
Death of close friend	37
Change to different line of work	36
Change in number of arguments with spouse	35
Mortgage over $10,000	31
Foreclosure of mortgage or loan	30

— Your Seattle Friend
Dear Seattle Friend: My thanks for a fascinating contribution. Interesting that going to jail creates 10 stress points LESS than getting a divorce — and only 13 points more than getting married! I suspect there are some convicts who would disagree.

Confidential to God Bless The Supreme Court: I doubt that the decision will put an end to pornography. The decision is sure to create a great deal of confusion, thousands of lawsuits, test cases, bottled-up stag films and the hard-core porn purveyors will go underground and charge five times as much.

Three persons still missing in Oklahoma

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rescue workers in Enid continued searching for three missing persons today in the wake of last week's killer flood.

Eight persons are known dead from Wednesday's 16-inch deluge, and the Enid area has been designated for disaster relief by President Nixon.

Police and National Guard troops worked overlapping 16-hour shifts Sunday to control the city's latest flood-sight-seers.

Enid police said more than twice the usual number of traffic accidents were reported Sunday. Most were blamed on persons trying to see the damage.

As flood-stricken families took advantage of Sunday's pretty weather to clean their homes and possessions, City Manager Tom Sailors Jr. warned residents not to be tempted into repair deals with unethical contractors.

He made the warning while

Judge to set new trial date

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — A circuit court judge in St. Louis County will set a new trial date for the last of five men charged in connection with a holdup of Cousin Hugo's tavern in Maplewood after declaring a mistrial in the case Saturday.

Judge James Ruddy declared the mistrial for Louis Jones after the jury reported being unable to break an 11-1 deadlock. One juror continued to hold out for Jones' acquittal after nearly 12 hours of deliberation.

Jones was charged with counts each of murder, armed robbery and assault stemming from the March 1972, incident which left an off-duty policeman and another man dead. Four other men have already been convicted of various charges resulting from the holdup.

announcing the opening of a one-stop disaster aid center made available by the federal government.

About 600 to 700 home and business owners are expected to apply for the low interest government-backed loans. Sailors said.

During the weekend, one of Enid's sewage plants was brought back on the line and the city is no longer dumping raw sewage into streams.

Downstream, the runoff of the torrential rains continued to hold the Salt Fork and Arkansas rivers out of their banks.

The highway department said the Salt Fork still blocked U.S. 177, U.S. 77 and Oklahoma 156 south of Ponca City.

Interstate 35 was still closed near Tonkawa where the rampaging Salt Fork tore out about 2,000 feet of the south-bound lane.

Ralston reported the Arkansas about four feet above flood stage Sunday night.

Cason's measure would end tax on household goods

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The president pro tem of the Missouri Senate has said he will introduce legislation next year for the repeal of the state's property tax on household goods.

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, indicated a 1972 constitutional amendment authorizing abolition of the tax has never been implemented because it would cost school districts and municipal governments about $8 million.

But the Senate leader said his proposal would require the state to make up the loss.

Cason was one of five Democratic leaders of the General Assembly honored over the weekend here by the St. Louis County Democratic Committee.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Blood pressure is doing well

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 75 years old and have been troubled with high blood pressure for over 42 years, the pressure goes up to 210-110, and at other times it drops to 140-60. When I go shopping for the full day it drops to 135-60. When it drops so low I have a very uncomfortable feeling. I am taking Apresoline, Inderol and Aldomet.

Will you please let me know what to do to stabilize the pressure? I am sending along a list of my pressures taken over a month's time.

Dear reader — Actually you are doing very well. In 16 out of 19 readings the diastolic (low reading was below 80. There were only two readings above 90. Actually 17 of your high readings (systolic) were 150 or above with only two of these over 180. If all people in your age bracket with elevated blood pressure could be controlled that well, we would be very happy with our treatment.

You probably have lost part of the normal elasticity of your aorta, the large artery that carries all the oxygenated blood out of the heart to the body after it returns to the lungs. When this happens it takes more pressure to provide circulation.

If you try to blow up a balloon it is fairly simple, but if you try to blow up an innertube it takes more pressure. Why? Because the innertube is less elastic. As the large aortic artery hardens it takes more pressure to force the blood out into it, and hence, the top blood pressure reading tends to rise. No amount of medicine for high blood pressure is really going to help this problem, and if you lower the pressure too much then you won't have effective circulation. Fainting and symptoms of fainting occur when the blood pressure is too low to maintain good circulation. In other words, for you it is necessary to have at least a high normal blood pressure to have good circulation.

When you stand up, the small arteries in the lower part of the body constrict through reflexes to prevent too much blood from pooling in the legs and causing fainting. High blood pressure medicines make these reflexes sluggish and sometimes cause too much lowering of the blood pressure when you stand. This may be a factor in your low pressures during long shopping trips.

I do have a suggestion you can talk to your doctor about. To prevent these low pressures when you are up for a long time, why not try a pair of support hose or elastic bandage around the legs. It could help prevent the accumulation of blood in the legs and may eliminate these lower readings and uncomfortable feeling. If your doctor has you try it let me know how it works for you.

Both sides rally

Jewish and Arab demonstrators protested at New York's City Hall Park Sunday as thousands gathered in support of Israel in the Mideast war. At least four persons, including the leader of the Action Committee on Arab-

American Relations, were arrested when some 40 pro-Arabs, demonstrating alongside the rally got into scuffles with police trying to disperse them. (UPI)

American women tested for space flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tests of women's responses to weightlessness and re-entry stress should not be taken as a backdoor commitment by the U.S. space program to put women in orbit, agency sources say.

"That's an awful assumption that isn't supported by the evidence," one official in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said.

The tests, which ended last week at Ames Research Center in California, were announced shortly after an article critical of NASA's all-male astronaut corps appeared in a feminist-oriented magazine.

NASA employees say the timing of the tests was unrelated to the article in "Ms." and that, despite official hedging, the odds are good that a highly qualified American woman scientist will be in space by the end of the decade.

If it occurs, it will be 17 years after the Soviet Union placed a woman balloonist on a space crew, 12 years after NASA dropped its principal barrier to women as astronauts and 10 years after NASA officials began saying informally that they wanted women on U.S. space missions.

Dr. George Low, NASA's deputy administrator, said in an interview before the testing announcement, "We're talking about an issue that doesn't exist anymore."

He laid down only two criteria to be met by women interested in space travel, criteria that would apply to all candidates for the space shuttle: "reasonable health" and "a reason for going into space."

NASA said the five-week testing program was for "clinical research on female physiology to develop selection criteria for women passengers in space shuttle missions."

NASA spokesman Donald L. Zylstra said the tests were "to see how women would react to space flight." He added that "passengers" was a word in the carefully screened news release that did not reflect the fact that all persons aboard the craft would be crew members, that "no one's going along for the ride."

He denied that the tests mean NASA has decided definitely to put women in space. The Ames tests, he said, "will prove or disprove" their physical qualifications for space flight, an aim not expressed by a project spokesman at Ames.

The shuttle — in effect an orbiting laboratory, observation deck and planetarium — is slated for first use in late 1978 or 1979.

It is not the next manned space endeavor scheduled. In 1975, a joint U.S.-Soviet mission is planned, with the American astronauts probably coming from the present pool of trained but untapped men, both pilots and scientists.

And the Skylab project — Skylab with European partners — could go up just before the shuttle. A new astronaut corps probably will be drawn for that, NASA spokesmen said, making it the next open door for women wanting to perform experiments in space.

But the door will only open then for women, Zylstra says.

Despite their fierce reputation, the 10,000 Yanomamo people scattered over 42,000 square miles in Venezuela and northern Brazil often settle their differences with singing diplomats.

if the Ames research discloses no physiological barriers to women as space travelers. Those tests — which, it was learned, some upper-level NASA officials wanted kept secret — use absolute bedrest to simulate weightlessness, to determine the effects on women's circulatory patterns, endocrine glands and biorhythms. If, as expected from other tests in other countries of sexual differentials under space-type stress, those tests clear women physiologically, then they could enter the competition to become an astronaut.

The last time around, in 1967, 17 women scientists and 906 men scientists applied for astronaut-scientist slots and 69 men's names were forwarded to NASA for final selection, according to National Academy of Sciences records.

The Ames tests were designed to see how well women can resist the tendency of blood to pool in the legs in space, to determine their tolerance to re-entry forces and to measure specific physiological changes.

"The results and conclusions are regarded vital as criteria for the selection of shuttle passengers, both male and female," NASA said.

Most astronauts to date have been robust test pilots who have experienced shrinking hearts and other bodily changes as a result of extended periods in space.

Dr. David Winter, a spokesman at Ames for the project, said at the midway point that he didn't "expect anything dramatic to come out of this, but I'd like to be able to say that with some data behind me."

He said the series with women is the first of several such tests, because "we're expanding our population" of potential space travelers from "the extremely narrow population of the highly athletic types."

For example, Winter said, "We want to send the university professor and his graduate student up there, and we need to see if we can." Middle-aged scientists, women and men, present selection problems test pilots did not, he said.

The research, mainly on cardiovascular responses, could bring some surprises in the analysis, since the astronauts so far have shown "subtle changes" in several of their body systems, he said, and variances in women's organs may produce different responses.

But the study primarily was intended to establish the "range of response we can expect," so that an individual candidate can be examined for her or his medical capacity for space flight, Winter said.

He added that no significant problems were anticipated with women as shuttle candidates. In the past, the chief of two commonly given reasons for why no American women have gotten above the ground-support ranks in the U.S. space program was a requirement that all astronauts had to be qualified and experienced jet pilots.

The second was indirect invocation of the budget: it would cost money for research and construction to provide different space suits for women and two spacebathrooms, along with accommodations for menstrual periods.

Low dismissed the biological-budgetary argument and said the jet-pilot requirement — dropped in 1967 as a selection prerequisite but maintained as a pre-flight requirement — could have been waived for at least two well-known women pilots of the early 1960s.

Low said that flight training would not be required or given for the shuttles, in which six or eight scientist crew members are expected to accompany two engineers and two pilots.

The deputy administrator envisions "anybody in the shuttle (who) can perform useful things in space."

He said that if anyone had raised the objection of too-expensive spacesuit changes in NASA's early high-budget days, "I would have thrown them out of my office."

This year's Skylab crafts incorporated bathroom and bedroom privacy, space-age style. NASA's chief doctor has called hygiene and waste collection systems "completely unacceptable" and said they need to be redone whether the crews are all-male or men and women.

The jet-pilot barrier was established by NASA but Sylstra kept the military, not NASA, kept women out of jet cockpits. Military barriers were dropped after NASA dropped the prerequisite.

Nonetheless, the Ames announcement raised the jet-experience question again.

Two active-duty and 10 reservist Air Force flight nurses were chosen, for the tests, NASA said, "because of their medical and flight training. It is not required that they be in prime physical condition like Mercury, Gemini and Apollo astronauts, but their general health is like that expected of space shuttle flight candidates."

Nine die in traffic accidents

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Weekend traffic accidents claimed nine lives in Missouri. Four of the victims were killed Sunday.

Early in the day, Velma Cain, 19, St. Louis, died in a car that ran off U. S. 67 near Arnold and struck a tree and James Simmons Jr., 24, Tamms, Ill., was killed in a two-car collision.

The highway patrol said Simmons' car slid on a curve along U.S. 60 a mile west of the Mississippi River Bridge leading into Cairo, Ill., and struck an oncoming auto.

Jens H. Hanson, 47, Lebanon, Mo., and Lauriston Ramsey, 81, Marshfield, Mo., died in separate accidents Sunday night.

The patrol said Hanson was found dead in his station wagon after it ran off Missouri 32 into a concrete culvert just east of Lebanon. Mrs. Ramsey was struck by a car as she crossed a street in her hometown.

Earlier deaths recorded by the highway patrol were:

Melissa Roberts, 13, Columbia, struck by a car at a Columbia intersection Saturday night.

Murphy Yocham, 31, Urbana, Mo., in a head-on collision near Urbana Saturday.

Elmer Albert Wolfe, 26, Jefferson City, whose motorcycle skidded into the side of a freight train at Tipton Saturday.

John A. Laroque, 29, Williamsburg, Iowa, in a one-car accident Saturday on U.S. 136 east of Unionville.

Donald J. Dame, 9 months, in a two-car collision Friday night in Kansas City.

Ervin's Watergate probe is criticized

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Albert L. Rendlen Sr., Missouri Republican Committee chairman, criticized the Ervin Committee's prolonged investigation of the Watergate scandal Sunday, calling it a "fraternity house prank" that amounted to "a hill of beans."

Rendlen, a Hannibal attorney, spoke at a GOP reception here.

He said that in his travels since succeeding Richard Berkeley of Kansas City as state chairman, he has been "surprised and pleased" to see the way the party has rebounded since Watergate, electing many in special state elections and experiencing an upsurge in contributions.

Explosion rocks Kansas City shopping center

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A pre-dawn explosion at a night-club rocked the posh Country Club Plaza shopping district in midtown Kansas City today.

There were no apparent injuries, but the blast shattered glass in shops along at least one block.

It was traced to the Observatory Lounge which was being remodeled and was scheduled to reopen tonight for a week-long series of performances by singer B. J. Thomas.

Edward Wilson, fire battalion chief, said some type of explosive device apparently was placed against a doorway at the rear of the building. "The force of the explosion blew toward the front," Wilson said.

It blew in the rear wall of the nightclub, scattering mortar and glass throughout the interior.

Across an alleyway, a brick wall of a department store was blackened.

Sand barge cut from its moorings

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A 75-ton sand barge was cut from its moorings on the Mississippi riverfront on the near north side here Sunday night, drifting down river and crashing into the Eads Bridge, police reported.

Authorities said the loaded barge was brought under control by a tow boat crew only 150 feet from the Becky Thatcher, a floating restaurant where some 80 persons were dining at the time.

Lyndall Hall, 16, of St. Louis was arrested for cutting the craft loose from the dock of the Mississippi River Sand & Material Co. and was booked suspected of destruction of property.

No one was injured in the incident, police said, and damage to the bridge, which carries both rail and automobile traffic between St. Louis and Illinois, was unknown.

Police said the span was not closed as a result of the incident.

Some brokerage houses say bull market has begun

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market has risen 97 points in the past month, based on the Dow Jones Industrial Average. It has provided evidence enough for some starry-eyed brokerage houses to declare the beginning of a bull market.

That a bull market has begun there is no doubt. But it isn't in stocks; it's in advice.

Market letter writers may be more careful than they were 15 years ago. Then bombast and wordage provided a sweet scent of romance when any intelligent investor should have demanded the facts be put under his nose.

Today's letter writers have more respect for the facts, but they still succumb to the temptation of using them to promote sales rather than to describe conditions.

Activity itself is a goal, because activity brings commissions. And commissions are paid whether stocks rise or fall. There is no requirement that analysis be correct.

The current environment is thus exemplified by statements such as "The year 1974 could be a surprisingly good year for stocks," and "We agree with the administration's chief economists that the nation has passed the worst of the economic fever of 1973."

Without attempting to define what economic fever is — it could be inflation, or too high a jobless rate, or lagging productivity, or weak exports, or the dollar trouble, or all and more — there is a case for economic improvement.

The dollar is now properly valued, or even undervalued. Exports are rising, imports slowing. Foreign money is beginning to flow into U.S. investments. Interest rates probably have peaked.

But only a promoter can ignore the grey color of consumer attitudes, the high interest rates, the devastated housing market, the possibility of chronic inflation, the failure of controls, the unhappy political climate.

These would be danger signs in any other time, but the hope of a market rally after so many months and even years of depressed prices and broker incomes, overcomes fear. A greater fear is all that red ink.

Profits, say some letter writers, have seldom if ever been better, but they omit saying that the stock market reacts to future events, not the past. They don't explain why the market didn't rise when profits were so high.

U.S. attorney's office has no word on raid probe

ST. LOUIS (AP) — U.S. Atty. Donald J. Stohr of the eastern district of Missouri has indicated his office has yet to receive word from the Justice Department about an investigation into wrongdoing by narcotics agents during drug raids in Missouri.

Stohr made the comment in response to reports that the federal grand jury in Alton, Ill., which indicted 12 agents of the now-defunct Drug Abuse Law Enforcement agency for violating 11 persons' civil rights during mistaken raids last April, has requested that those making the Illinois probe forward information about the conduct of agents in Missouri to "the proper prosecuting authority."

The Illinois inquiry, Stohr said, has been conducted by the civil rights unit of the Justice Department.

"It could very well be that the division is conducting an investigation in Missouri," he commented. "But the information would have to come from Washington."

U.S. District Court Judge Robert Morgan said both he and the Alton grand jurors asked, "in fact I directed, those conducting the inquiry in Alton to refer the information about conduct of agents in Missouri to the U.S. attorney."

The action came after the grand jury heard testimony from Sterling Bell and Dorothy King, both of the St. Louis area, who have filed separate suits against some of the agents indicted for the wrong-door raids in the Collinsville, Ill., area.

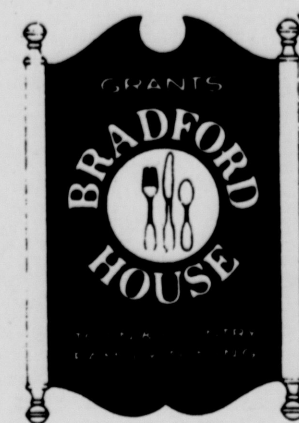

The grand jury could only request a probe of the Missouri situation, authorities said, because it has no jurisdiction over the conduct of federal narcotics agents in Missouri.

Bell has filed a $1 million damage suit against agents who approached him last October in the mistaken belief that he was a drug pusher. He was charged with assault after struggling with the agents during the incident.

Mrs. King filed an $18,000 suit against several agents claiming they engaged in wanton destruction of property and personal effects during a drug raid on her home in June 1972.
